*“The UK has a particularly poor record on the use of information technologies in the health service. It is behind other countries and other sectors in exploiting the benefits of ICT. Around 1.5 per cent of health spending in the UK is on ICT compared to 6 per cent in the US. In other sectors, the share of spending on IT is much higher.” **

A person's hands are holding a white sign with the words "FREE STUFF" written in large, bold, black capital letters. The sign is held against a bright blue sky with some light clouds. The person's hands are visible on the left and right sides of the sign, gripping the edges. The sign is slightly curved at the top.

A photograph of a dirt road winding through a forest. The road is flanked by tall, dry grasses and brush. The trees are mostly bare, suggesting autumn or winter. The sky is overcast. The overall tone is somewhat somber and reflective.

The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena; whose face is marred with dust and sweat; who strives valiantly; who errs and may fall again and again, because there is no effort without error or shortcoming.
